

Kiwi

New Zealand has a unique cultural identity, quite unlike anywhere else in the world.

'Kiwiana' is the term used to describe items relating to New Zealand's unique culture and history. Often shortened to "Kiwi" named after NZ's flightless native bird.

Decidedly multi-cultural, modern New Zealand society is a fusion of Maori, Polynesian, Asian and European cultures.

New Zealanders are recognised globally for their progressive humanitarian stance, liberal politics and world-leading social welfare, and enjoy a high quality of life.

Some notable items of Kiwiana are; Silver Fern; Buzzy Bee; Fish and Chips; Rugby; Kiwifruit; Pavlova; Sheep; BBQ; sausage sizzles.